Subject: Microsoft is acting worse than ever.

I am a software developer. I am very unhappy with the control that Microsoft has over the industry. They are acting worse than ever and need to be broken up. I would suggest that they be broken into three companies by Operating System, development tools, and applications.

They use their power in each area to force developers and users to use their products in the other areas. I am very unhappy with their attack and imitation of the Java environment, and their removal of support for plug-ins in their browser.

The current proposals will do nothing to stop the monopolistic practices of the company.
